Socialism typically argues that capitalism undermines democracy, facilitates exploitation, distributes opportunities and resources unfairly, and vitiates community, stunting self-realization and human development. Socialism democratizes, humanizes, and rationalizes economic relations, largely eliminating these problems.

Marx's theory of socialism presupposes an end to personal dependence and mutual dependence. Capitalist mode of production has a tendency to dissolve settled or mutually family relations of personal dependence, dominant in earlier modes of production.

Socialism is the expression of absolute truth, reason, and justice, and has only to be discovered. As an absolute truth, it is independent of time, space, and the historical development of man. It is a mere accident when and where it is discovered.
